Parent or Guardian of an Adolescent or Young Adult (age 16-30) with Autism?

We want to hear from you!

Researchers at Case Western Reserve University are conducting a study of the experiences of families caring for an adolescent or young adult with an Autism Spectrum Disorder. Information from the study can help develop programs and services to support families like yours in the community.

We want to hear your story.

Consider taking part in a confidential, in-person interview at a location and time that is convenient for you. We can even come to your home.

Receive a Visa gift card as a thank you for your participation.

Contact: Dr. David Biegel

PH: 216-368-2308   E-mail: david.biegel@case.edu

To hear more about the study, please call Dr. Biegel at 216-368-2308 or fill out the form below, tear it off, and mail it to: Dr. David E. Biegel, Ph.D, Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences, Case Western Reserve University, 10900 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, OH 44106. Someone will contact you with more information about the study.

Yes, I would like to hear more about the study. Please contact me at (check one or both and provide your contact information):

☐ Email: ____________________________

☐ Phone: ____________________________

Name: ____________________________
Are You a Parent or Guardian of a Teen or Young Adult (age 16-30) with Autism?

Consider participating in a research study at Case Western Reserve University about experiences of families caring for teens or young adults (age 16-30) with Autism Spectrum Disorders. Information from the study can help us create programs and services to support families like yours in the community. Participation involves a private in-person interview that lasts about 90 minutes. The interview will be scheduled at a time and place convenient for you. Participants will receive a VISA Gift Card. To hear more about this study, please contact Dr. David Biegel at david.biegel@case.edu or 216-368-2308. We look forward to hearing from you.