West Side Market Disability Access Day Social Story

The West Side Market is Cleveland's largest and oldest operating public market. It has served fresh produce, meats, bakery, dairy, prepared foods, and more to Clevelanders and visitors since 1912.

Inside the main hall of the Market, there are many vendors that are selling items. You will see many kinds of meat including fish, beef, chicken, and pork that can be bought to take home to cook.

There are also cheeses, bread, spices, pasta, and desserts. You can even buy food that is ready to eat, such as sandwiches, dumplings, empanadas, and cookies!

At times, it can be a little loud and crowded inside the Market. But don't worry, there are many kind vendors that are there to help you. Even though the countertops may be too high for some people, there are spaces between the display cases that are accessible for everyone.

There is a separate but connected part of the Market that sells fruits and vegetables. It was recently remodeled and is still very new-looking.

A visit to the West Side Market can be an interesting and fun experience. Just remember that the vendors that work there are more than willing to help. All you have to do is ask!
